Mission Statement

New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary and Leavell College prepare servants to walk with Christ, proclaim His truth, and fulfill His mission.

Course Description

This seminar engages students in advanced-level exegesis, focusing on the use of current Logos Software Technology for exegesis of a selected Bible book. The course will utilize basic to advanced functions of Logos Bible Software as a tool for biblical exegesis and sermon preparation.

Student Learning Outcomes

Knowledge

Students who complete this course successfully should:

- Know the background information for understanding the authorship, date, theological themes, and critical issues in the Pastoral Epistles
- Know the interpretative issues for understanding the challenging passages in the Pastoral Epistles and how these issues relate to proper exegesis of the letters
- Know how the letters are structured, Paul's intention for writing them, and how the discourse is laid out for Paul's audience
- Know the various interpretative views on the critical issues for interpreting the letters
- Know how to comprehend Paul's message to his original audience and then apply this exegetical content to the contemporary church setting
- Know how to utilize the Logos Bible Software for exegesis of the text and for sermon preparation
- Know how to utilize the Logos 10 step hermeneutical process for exegeting a passage of Scripture

Attitude

Students who complete this course successfully should:

- Appreciate the richness of the Pastoral Epistles in their spiritual message to the original hearers and contemporary audiences
- Appreciate the ecclesiastical guidance of the Pastoral Epistles for all churches (1 Timothy)
- Appreciate the rich theology of the Pastoral Epistles related to being a disciple of Christ (2 Timothy) and understanding God's priorities for mature ministries (Titus)

- Appreciate the power of the Logos Bible Software for Bible study, exegesis, interpretation, and application to the sermon preparation process
- Appreciate how to utilize the Faithlife resources for church and ministry applications
- Recognize the power of the software to examine the richness original Greek and Hebrew texts for exegesis and Bible Study
- Appreciate the Logos 10 Nine (9) step hermeneutical organization for sermon preparation

Skills

Students who complete this course successfully should:

- Understand how to employ the Pastoral Epistles in pastoral ministry
- Understand how to use the Logos Bible Software to study the Pastoral Epistles and develop a sermon series from them
- Know how to utilize the Logos Bible Software functions for conducting searches from basic to advanced levels for all resources in their personal software library
- Know how to conduct word studies in the original languages
- Know advanced levels of understanding the Logos Bible Software for cataloging sermons and creating personal books within the software

Embedded Assignment

There is no Embedded Assignment for this course

Required Digital Textbooks to Purchase in Logos

The student should understand that this course REQUIRES the purchase of Logos 10 Bronze Level Bible Software--or for those who pre-own Logos--the purchase of the upgrades necessary to reach the Logos 10 Bronze Level. The software includes the textbooks, except for one book which must be added on to your Logos account (see the textbook list below).

We will all have the same digital textbooks as we study together in this class. We will download Logos 10 or upgrade your current Logos software in our pre-work periods. The Instructor will send a list of assigned videos to watch and learn some basic functions prior to attending seminar together. The instructor will be in contact with registered students prior to our class seminar meeting. We will likely have several Zoom meetings to organize, encourage, and answer questions prior to our seminar meetings.

How do I purchase or upgrade my Logos 10 Bronze Level software?

Every NOBTS student should have an account with Logos through NOBTS. Your NOBTS email address which you supplied to the Seminary will be your account email. For new Logos purchasers, you will receive a 30% discount on the new software. For those of you who are upgrading to Logos 10 or adding resources, please go to www.logos.com/academic-discounts. You may need to supply your current information and a picture of your NOBTS student ID.

For questions on pricing and student discounts, please contact Logos Bible Software's customer service directly at 800-875-6467. Be sure to mention you are a current student at NOBTS.

The basic level you will need for this class is:

Logos 10 Bible Software: Bronze Level or higher

You may purchase a higher level and we encourage you to do so if you are financially able. The higher levels give you more resources. The textbook list follows and there is only one resource you will need to purchase in addition to your software package. Please understand that the Logos 10 level has many advancements over earlier levels (9, 8, 7, 6, 5, etc.) You will need Logos 10 Bronze Level in order to have the resources and functionality for the seminar. You may also select Logos's payment plan to divide up the cost. When you select a resource, you can choose one payment or multiple payments. See their checkout for more information.

Required Course Textbook List

Course Teaching Methodology

The course will involve the following methodologies in three phases:

The first phase of the course will consist of pre-work where the student will write a background paper and begin to learn basic functions of the Logos software. The specific instructions for Logos software pre-work will be sent by the professor to the registered students. This phase will include at least two Zoom sessions (to be scheduled later).

The second phase of the course will be three days of meetings where the class will exegete the letters together and learn advanced functions with the software. The seminar classes will consist of lectures and hands-on work with the software.

The third phase will consist of post-work where the student will write an exegesis paper on a selected passage (see details below). The paper will conclude with sermon outlines to be shared with the class members. The professor will divide portions of the letters among the students who take the course. Each student will share their exegesis and sermon outlines resulting in a compilation of exegetical notes and sermon outlines for future preaching. The goal here will be for the students to utilize the software resources for writing the paper, including the Bibliography functionality in Logos 10.

Course Requirements

A. Pre-Course Work

1. Purchase the Logos software and the commentary textbooks through Logos. Instructions on how to do this will follow the close of registration. The textbooks will be digital so they are searchable using the Logos software and must be purchased through Logos so they are included in the software.
2. Students will prepare a background study and begin using their software for specified basic functions during the pre-work time (see details and dates below).
3. The Instructor will send a list of training videos to view and set up your software prior to the three-day seminar. We will set up several Zoom meetings prior to the seminar to help answer questions and move the basic learning along.

B. Campus Seminar Course Work

1. The in-class sessions will cover the biblical text of the Pastoral Epistles. During this phase of the course, the class will learn new advanced software searches. Open discussion will be encouraged and sharing of skills learned using the software. After registration has closed, each student will be assigned portions of the letters to be prepared to share with the class (see details and dates below).
2. During the in-class sessions, students will share exegetical insights from their pre-assigned portions of the biblical text, background information, and insights gleaned from learning the functionality of the software.

C. Post-Seminar Work

1. The post-work will consist of writing an exegesis paper over assigned passages and each student will compose sermon outlines that cover their portions of the biblical text. The exegesis work and sermon outlines will be shared among the class members by posting them into the Discussion area for downloading. The students will compose a notebook (digital or paper) for later use in a sermon series on the Pastoral Epistles (see details and dates below). By combining the work of the work of the class, each student will have a comprehensive background file, exegetical material, and sermon starter outlines for future use in ministry settings.

Evaluation of Grade

For the following written assignments, please include a Title Page, Content Page(s), and Bibliography. Please follow the NOBTS writing guide using Turabian format. These features will give each student experience in the format that will be utilized at the dissertation stage. The wise student will learn Turabian now before the project paper stage.

The student's grade will be computed as follows:

A. Pre-work background paper 20%

The background paper should cover all preliminary study the pastor normally undergoes in preparation for a sermon or sermon series: included should be, but not limited to, date, authorship, context of the letters, theological themes, and issues that led Paul to write these letters, and other discoveries, etc.

How do I use Logos's Nine (9) Step Expository Sermon Workflow to write my Background Paper?

We will introduce you to Logos's Nine (9) Step Expository Sermon Workflow in this course. To compose your Background Paper, please go to your main toolbar and locate Guides. Click on that and you will discover the Expository Sermon icon. If your version of Logos does not have the Expository Sermon icon in the Guides, scroll down (in Guides) to Workflows. Then scroll down further to Passage Exegesis (where there are 11 Steps). Click on that and enter your passage range at the top. Follow Steps 1- 3. Look especially at Step 3 where you will explore the Cultural and Historical contexts using the resources for the Pastorals in your personal library holdings. Please note, the headings may be slightly different, but the content is primarily the same. Begin writing your background paper using these Steps that will connect you to your commentaries where you will find the bulk of your background material. NOTE: The more resources you have in Logos, the more information you will have access to.

Strategy: The student may divide this material along the lines of the separate letters or compile them together. The goal is to create a study tool where the student may return to refresh the background material that informs exegesis and sermons. Basic software functions will also be learned during this period. The instructor will hold a Zoom session with students registered for the course and we will have time to discuss this.

B. Classroom participation 30%

Once registration has closed, the instructor will divide the passage sections in the letters among the participants in the seminar. As we work through the letters, we will openly discuss the issues and complexities of the content. Word studies will be generated as we discuss the content. Features from the software will be structured, but also spontaneous as we ask questions and discuss the text while learning how to use the software to find answers and information. The idea here is to share insights and learn new software functions that will help in exegesis and sermon preparation. Attendance will be crucial for maximum learning and active participation is encouraged.

C. Post-work exegesis paper with sermon outlines 50%

Assignment of Passages

Depending on the number of class members, we will divide up the letters and share the load of exegetical work and sermon preparation. The professor will try to assign portions from each letter in the pastoral corpus so each student can experience exegesis and interpretation in each of the three letters. The goal is to utilize Logos resources to generate the exegesis paper and to utilize the Logos bibliography function (to be learned later).

Paper Details

The exegesis paper should be 25 pages of exegetical text, double-spaced and in Turabian format. The student may go beyond this page limit which does not include front matter nor the Appendix (for sermon outlines) and Bibliography.

Using the Logos 10 Nine (9) Step Expository Sermon Workflow

You were introduced above to the Logos Bible Software has a 9 Step Expository Sermon Workflow that is tied to their software resources. The student is encouraged to follow this process for this paper. The steps may be customized for later use as suits the student's needs. However, we encourage you to try these steps as you learn the software so that you are familiar with the material.

Composing Your Sermon Outlines

The sermon outlines should be included in an Appendix of the paper. The idea is to generate sermon starters for later use in ministry messages. As the class compiles and shares the data with each other, collaborative learning and sharing is promoted. Think of our sharing as a joint project where we help each other.

Additional Bibliographic Sources

The exegetical section needs to include content from the textbook commentaries, word studies, discourse information from the Logos propositional outlines (to be learned in class), and any other data the student discovers by using the software. This section may also include journals, dissertations, and additional sources as described below.

Help for Writing Papers at “The Write Stuff”

NOBTS maintains a Writing Center designed to improve English writing at the graduate level. Students can receive writing guides, tips, and valuable information to help in becoming a better writer.

Plagiarism on Written Assignments

NOBTS has a no tolerance policy for plagiarism. Plagiarism in certain cases may result in expulsion from the seminary. See the NOBTS Student Handbook for definition, penalties, and policies associated with plagiarism.

Course Schedule Dates

Purchase the Logos software and required Logos digital textbooks as soon as possible. The sooner the student starts research and the prescribed Logos training videos, the better. Once the course registration is set, the instructor will contact the class members and give a prescribed schedule for learning the basics of Logos. We may have a Zoom meeting to answer questions and encourage starting on the video lessons.

- Pre-work papers are due in the Discussion Area on the first day of class April 29, 2024.
- Classroom work will be ongoing for the three days of the seminar: April 29–May 1, 2024, according to the published ProDoc schedule of times.
- Post-work exegesis papers will be due Canvas May 8, 20234.

Additional Sources for Bibliography

Journal Articles: Additional bibliography may be found in the ATLA database in our NOBTS library. Go there and query the passage(s) you are interested in, and you will find the articles to add to your paper.

Dissertations: The Dissertations are in ProQuest. Query your passage(s) to find these. While you are there, you can see what has been written in your area of study.

Online Resources: See Logos.com for their list of Best Commentaries and recent releases of commentaries; See also bestcommentaries.com which has a link to the Logos.com website for ordering commentaries; and Denverseminary.edu in their Denver Journal section for annotated OT bibliographies and NT commentaries and monograph resources to help in your academic work.

Note: Not every bibliographic entry listed in this syllabus is offered in Logos, but a good number of them are. A strategy for building your Logos library is to locate a resource you wish to purchase and start with the Logos software website to see if they have the resource. They are adding resources constantly, so be sure to check back periodically. Remember that any resource you own in your Logos library is searchable, hence the wisdom for building your library digitally.

Finally, you will notice that a number of commentaries are forthcoming. We have tried to include some of these so you can be watching for their publication.
